

Finding a Lost Pet

Two friends are walking down the street, looking around for any sign of a lost dog.

Person A: Have you seen a small, brown dog around here?

Person B: No, I haven't. What's its name?

Person A: Her name is Bella. She's been missing since this morning.

Person B: I'll help you look for her. Where should we start?

Discussing a New Video Game

At recess, two friends are excitedly discussing the latest video game release as they sit on the swings.

Person A: Did you play the new Galaxy Quest game yet?

Person B: Yes, I started it last weekend. It's really challenging!

Person A: I'm stuck at the level with the space pirates. Any tips?

Person B: Try upgrading your ship's lasers. It helped me get through that part.

Planning a Science Project

Two students are sitting at a table piled with books and a laptop, brainstorming ideas for their upcoming science project.

Person A: What topic did you pick for our science project?

Person B: I was thinking about doing something on renewable energy.

Person A: That sounds interesting! Maybe we can focus on solar power?

Person B: Great idea! Let's research how solar panels work.

Preparing for a School Talent Show

Backstage, two students are preparing for their performances in the school talent show, sharing their nerves and excitement.

Person A: Are you nervous about the talent show next week?

Person B: A little. I've never played the piano in front of so many people before.

Person A: You're going to do great. How often have you been practicing?

Person B: Thanks! I practice every day after school for at least an hour.

Time Travel Adventure

Two friends are discussing the possibility of time travel.

Person A: If you could time travel, where would you go?

Person B: I would definitely go to the time of the dinosaurs. I want to see a T-Rex up close.

Person A: I'd choose the future, maybe 300 years ahead. I wonder if people will live on Mars by then.

Person B: That would be incredible! We could see if any of our inventions made it to the future.

Dance Rehearsal

Two dancers are discussing a new routine they are learning. You should add in details about the style of dance.

Dancer A: Did you hear about the new dance routine we're learning for the recital?

Dancer B: No, I haven't. What style of dance is it?

Dancer A: It's _____. It's going to be challenging but really cool.

Person B: That sounds amazing. I've always wanted to try something like that. Who's choreographing it?

Person A: Miss Hannah is. She said it's going to be a tribute to famous dancers throughout history.

Person B: I can't wait to start practicing!

Trying Out for the _____ Team

Two friends are practicing their favorite sport, taking a break to talk about the upcoming tryouts for the school team. You should add in details that share what sport they are discussing.

Friend 1: I'm really nervous about tryouts next week.

Friend 2: You? But you're an amazing player!

Friend 1: Thanks, but I always get nervous in front of the coaches.

Friend 2: Just play like you do here. You'll make the team for sure.

Friend 1: I hope we both do!

Auditions

Two friends are discussing auditions. You can choose if it will be cheerleading, a musical, or other activity. Change the wording to fit your focus.

Person A: Are you nervous about the _____ auditions tomorrow?

Person B: Definitely. I've been practicing for weeks. How about you?

Person A: I'm worried about the dance routine. I'm not as strong in dancing as I would like to be.

Person B: We could practice together after school. I'm good with the dance steps but could use help with my tumbling.

Person A: That would be great. I heard they're looking for at least ten new members.
