

Reading Memories from _____

Think back to books you have read in the past. You might recall a book a family member read to you before you could read to yourself. Or, the book might be the first book you remember reading by yourself. Is there a book a teacher read to you that stands out in your memories? Maybe there is a book that you would check out from the library over and over. It could even be a book you read during the summer! It can be a book that brings you happy thoughts, but it does not have to. Share your memories of this book below.

Title:

Author:

Think about why this book is important to you. Share your thoughts below:

1.

2.

If you are going to sit and read a book, what is your ideal setting? Use words and pictures to share what you are visualizing.

Memories from our past influence our feelings today. This is true about so many parts of life but also reading! What memories do you have that are connected with reading? Share five positive or negative experiences that connect with reading or writing.

1.
2.
3.
4.
5.

When you think about reading, how does it make you feel?
Explain your answer.

